

BRECKENRIDGE NEWS

Breckenridge County Good Templars Convention.

In accordance with an agreed time, the I. O. G. T. of Breckenridge county met in convention on May 17, 1879, at Stephensport, and after exchanging the usual greetings of the day, the house was called to order by Bro. E. G. S. Barlett, and on motion Bro. Clifford Moorman was called to the chair, and J. C. Brasher to the secretary's desk, by a unanimous vote of the convention.

After a very encouraging and wholesome remarks by Bro. G. W. Beard, J. R. Higgs and E. G. S. Barlett, on the ground of the order, the following resolutions were presented and reported as in fine working order, containing about three hundred and fifty members: Haselburg, by G. W. Beard; Higgs, by E. G. S. Barlett; Union Star, by J. R. Higgs; Hazel Dell, by Bro. Hanks; Stephensport, by J. C. Brasher; Bro. F. P. Purcell and Miss. Doll, not being members of Cloverport and Newville lodges were permitted to give in favorable reports.

Bro. Beard gave a very encouraging report of the district convention recently held in Davison county. Lighted lodges were represented, with a membership of about one thousand.

After a very warm and entertaining discussion for and against, on motion, the following resolution was rejected:

Resolved, That hereafter, we, as a convention, transact all the business of the convention with closed doors.

The following resolutions were offered, all of which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we recommend and expect each member to vote for Local Option whenever opportunity offers itself.

Resolved, That a committee of three, J. C. Brasher, G. W. Beard and E. G. S. Barlett, be appointed from this convention, by the chair, to solicit a column of Temperance items of the order in the county.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the good people of Stephensport for the hospitality and kind manner in which they have entertained the delegates composing this convention.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this convention be published in the Good Templars Advocate and The Breckenridge News.

Resolved, That our G. W. C. Templar, or one of his associates, be requested to meet with us at our next convention.

After some spirited and highly interesting speeches by Bro. Purcell and Bro. Beard, nominations of a place for holding the next meeting was put before the house, and Hazel Dell was unanimously chosen with which to hold our next convention, on Saturday before the third Sunday in August, 1879.

LEITCHFIELD.

Court this week. Business splendid. Chick & Dent are without a clerk. No need apply except boys with good habits.

Hon. J. Alva Murray, from Cloverport, is in town fixing to send some one to the Judge will give you all time to fix a bed.

You may hear there is croquet on hand, when you hear Mr. Eddie Brown's tenor and Miss Little Hoyer's alto ringing in your ears, softly.

The style is now for a gentleman to make an engagement with a lady one week before calling, especially when there are two or three Charlies on the line.

Miss Charlie is a sweet name, but more than that she is a sweet name.

Miss Charlie Cunningham was married one week ago to Joe Rogers, of Tennessee. They left some evening for their future home, to try the realities of a real life. Miss Charlie has the best wishes of her many friends in Leitchfield. She is a pure, sweet girl, and deserves a happy life. Gentlemen, she is not yet too late to be admired, but too far off to be possessed. Miss Bettie DeHaven left with the bridal party, and will remain two weeks in Louisville, (for what purpose we know not), then home to remain, perhaps, but a short time.

We learn that the Literary Society is still improving. It was very much enjoyed Tuesday night by those who were honored with an invitation. It was hard to tell which one of the J. M. Cox's beautiful little poem was intended for. Mr. Baxter's composition, "Phenomena of the Imagination," was splendid—could I have been otherwise when his "pleasant imagination" run out so true and warm after one of the ladies present. The debate was indeed amusing. Messrs. Baxter and Claggett in the affirmative. Prof. Adkinson and Miss Minnie Graham in the negative, (albeit, resolved, that women gossip more than men.)

Mr. Baxter, I think, got a little off of his subject when he read from the Bible that "woman was given to flattery," that her mouth was as "sweet as honey-comb," her "tongue well oiled," etc. He would think it well oiled if he would let her me know. I guess he would find a difference between that and "gossip." Miss Minnie and the Professor defended the ladies so nobly and so beautifully that we feel wholly incapable of paying them the compliment they deserve, so close by wishing their Society and the News much success.

WHITE'S RUN.

Weather warm. Wheat and oats look well. Oh! if that little Star could talk.

Plenty of apples, but no peaches. Cars is not coming up worth a cent.

Tattlers and ticks are plentiful; both are tormenting.

Be careful, Lucy, you and Alice, and don't get such a large bouquet next time.

Misses Belle Adkinson, Alice Hawkins and Lucy Beavin were initiated into the I. O. G. T. on the evening of the 17th.

Look here, Miss Violet, what Zeke is it off at? If it's this one, he is beginning to get aggravated about it.

Miss Rebecca Francis is quite ill, at her brother's, Mr. G. W. Frazier, of this community.

This world would be much more pleasant

if every body would attend to their own business and not bother other people's.

Little Alice Hawkins, of Stephensport, is visiting the family of Mr. W. H. Hawkins, of this place. Yes, and she is sweet, too.

Our Sabbath School on last Sunday was filled with emotion and sympathy by listening to the following essays: "The Little Orphan," by Miss Rosie Barlett; "The Power of a Sweet Voice," by Miss Lucy Beavin; "Alone, Yet not Alone," by Miss Belle Adkinson; "Only Waiting," by Miss Alice Hawkins.

There are many things we see in our daily life that we would not notice but for the latest one we noticed.

Was at the Stephensport convention.

WAT.

McDANIEL'S.

Not dead yet.

Ho! for Leitchfield.

Fine rain last week.

Have you had measles?

Can't you come up with me?

The Colorado bug is here again.

Measles are thick in the Forks—none in town yet.

You Owensboro chap, play us another tune from that flute. Good music.

Say! our Board is growing apace—Piercing through. We can pull 'em.

Some improvements going on in the village. We will have a place on the maps yet.

We hear the old cry of "no tobacco places" being what a "leech." You can't kill the things.

Everybody and his uncle have been fishing for the last week, and caught a three-inch sucker and one little chick.

Hey! you P.O.R. Doctor. Send us some more "free lazes." Our cold is so bad it can be, and getting worse. Shake twice.

Times are not getting much better here. Tobacco is at a stand still. We look for better things soon. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher says that a man who can not live on bread and water, and be happy with his wife and children, is no man at all. It is easy to talk, when you are pastor of a little church, with $20,000 a year salary, where a poor bread and water fellow never goes. Let him try it, and his old hypocritical face will soon lose its bloom. The D—! take all such preachers.

John H. McDaniels, a highly respected citizen of our town, died ten days ago. He was an old settler here, and for several years was a leading merchant. "McDaniels' Store" being a household name. Like all other men, he had his faults, but he was a kind neighbor, and more than one outside of the family will sadly miss "Uncle John."

There is a recent chair beside the hearth to-day. A loved one gone we'll see more. 'Till from this earth we are called away. To meet on that eternal shore.

G.A.S.

LOST RUN.

The tobacco plants are nearly all destroyed by the flies.

What looks well, and if nothing happens we will have a good crop.

I heard a girl say that Gid. Horsey was as sweet as a candy peach.

Wilson and Pool have gone to Leitchfield. K. B.—says hurry back, Bob.

Sue and Biddy will marry when the folks won't be thinking about it.

I think that Germantown is a place of fortune, and has the best girls in ten States.

I think L. C.'s mamma had better keep him at Hudsonville. His rides too fine a horse.

Eliza is going to have a Payne—if it isn't a misery—and Ellen has got Mr. Terry for her beau.

Mr. Len. Payne's wife and daughter's funerals will be preached at Last Run the first Sunday in June, by Brother Brickman.

A. D.—says that if they don't stop calling her "Mrs. Myer," she will take the widower, and then they won't any of them get him. I wish you success, Miss A.

Brother Goddy preached at Germantown last Sunday, and everybody behaved well—but three boys thought that he was too hard on them, and they left and went home.

I saw in the last News that G. T.—lacked one scholar of getting her school. She lacks more than that of having scholars enough to teach school. She is a daisy, ain't she Bob?

Addie says that her old sweetheart is the best, if he is gone. Come back, N. C. W.—the like you the best yet. She says that he is the best of all that men. You be as she speaks well of him. I heard a fellow say that he wished N. C.—never would come back, and maybe he could get Addie for a sweetheart. I doubt it.

Mr. Myer, if you come to see Miss A.—any more, I will break your neck and N. C.—will break your jaw.

Go along home, Liza Jane. I will meet you on the other train.

She hugged me and she kissed me. I slapped her hands and cried. That I was the prettiest man that ever lived or died.

MONDAY HILL.

PISGAH SCHOOL HOUSE.

The farmers are very busy planting corn and preparing their tobacco ground, but I don't think there will be much tobacco raised this season.

We have a nice prospect for apples, and Mr. Dowd says he thinks he will have peaches to come to and sell, for he had one bloom.

Mr. Alexander Robinson and wife (formerly Melissa J. Pate), of Havesville, paid a visit to their old home last week.

Why is it that the young men of Breckenridge visit Havesville so often this spring? I reckon it is because Miss L. and Miss A. live there. That's right, boys, go again.

Mr. W. F. Lohs looks good and lonely since he paid the last visit to Mount Vernon church with his sweetheart, W. F. Why don't you visit Cloverport as often as you did Cennas House?

I wish the News the greatest success.

Wm. Lloyd Garrison, the notorious abolitionist, is dead.
